An eclectic exhibition with lino-cuts, photographs, watercolors and stoneware will open at The Art Association on Friday, July 28, with a reception from 5 to 8 PM. The Barry Spessler Jazz Duo will provide the music for the reception, hosted by Kate Earley. The exhibition sponsor is Sue Rothman. Artists featured in the exhibition are Douglas A. Anderson of Lititz, Evelyn R. Burton of Harrisburg, Cathy Frey of Williamsport, John Guarnera of Duncannon, and Fred Scruton of Cranesville.

“Making art is my way of understanding, or at least trying to understand, the world around me,” states Douglas Anderson. He says that he gets his inspiration from the news, current events, walking through town and observing people, history, music and literature. He often takes themes that have been depicted in art throughout the centuries and then puts his own twist to those themes. Though he paints and draws, he uses linocuts as a means of expressing himself because of the direct nature of relief prints, and the immediacy of the graphic process. He likes the “simple directness” that linocuts produce.

Evelyn Burton asks, “Who can explain the mysteries of the conscious and subconscious mind?” As wake slips into sleep, she says, “experience becomes ephemeral, unexplainable. Images become sensations and memory becomes impermanent.” Burton explains that the solace of the darkroom allows her to experiment using basic drawing materials and traditional chemical photography. Darkroom photography is a completely hand-made process, unlike digital photography, and requires great patience and persistence. She goes on to say that each negative provides the opportunity to try variations of material and technique, and to take that image as far as the imagination allows.

Cathy Frey, who received her formal training at York Academy of Art and Antonelli Institute of Art and Photography, successfully learned the techniques of the Old Masters. She holds as her favourites Michelangelo, Renoir, Mucha and John Singer Sargent. Her own work covers a wide range of subject matter and genres, including allegorical and contemporary work. She describes her passion as “classic romantic figurative.” As a portrait painter, Frey chooses watercolors over oils for their “lasting value, faster completion and delivery time” for her clients. The luminous transparency of watercolor has kept her respectful of its unforgiving qualities, and she is proud to call herself a “watercolor purist.” All her paintings are completed without the aid of white paint, tapes, slow-drying media or masking fluids.

The Five-Artist Exhibition Opens July 28

TOP: WORK BY FRED SCRUTON, WORK BY JOHN GUARNERA.

Ceramicist John Guarnera has a very lengthy, personal connection with clay, and thinks of his work as not being complete until after the final firing. He reminds us that “From fire comes life.” Each stage in the completion of a piece requires sensitivity to the clay, the surface, and the material in use at any particular moment. Guarnera feels that pieces have to do with aesthetics, rather than function. His clay pieces are expressionist, poetic, and ethereal rather than literal. He avers that ceramics is about “mark making, texture, surface and division of space.” His work explores the art of clay, with the simplest of forms, the bowl, a favourite canvas for a multitude of surface treatments. It is his intent to present work that appears “timeless.”

Embracing the “truth is stranger than fiction” tradition of street photography, Fred Scruton’s documentary project celebrates the expressive vitality of mostly self-taught artists working outside the mainstream of contemporary art. Shaped less by the influences of mass-media and the academy, their built-environments and artwork reflect the artists’ own lives, cultural histories and “inner musings.” His photographs combine artificial and natural lighting as well as weather and seasonal considerations in the tradition of the “heightened document.” Scruton, having cultivated long-term relationships with many of the artists, often makes yearly return visits and spends several days at one site. He says that some of the best picture ideas have come from the artists themselves, with specific photographs sometimes planned more than a year in advance.

This diverse exhibition will remain on view at the Art Association of Harrisburg, 21 N. Front St., through August 31. Call 717-236-1432 for more information or visit www.artassocofhbg.com.

Norma Gotwalt Obituary

We mourn the passing of former board chair Norma Gotwalt.

Norma J. Gotwalt, AAH Board Chair from 1991 through 1994, died on March 19 at Messiah Lifeways, Mechanicsburg. During her tenure on the AAH Board, Norma had been very pro-active in establishing scholarship art classes for disadvantaged youth in the Harrisburg School District, and was our Chair when The Art Association formed our partnership with the City in the creation of the four studios in Reservoir Park. Continuing her abiding interest in youth, Norma donated two scholarships each year for the AAH Art School Annual Exhibition. She also contributed to several recent AAH capital projects.

Norma Gotwalt was born in 1930 in York, and received her Bachelor's and Master's Degrees in Elementary Administration from Bucknell University. She received her Post Master's in Educational Administration from Penn State University. She worked for the Office of Presidential Correspondence for the White House, and was appointed by Governor Ridge to chair the PA State Civil Service Commission in Harrisburg. She also was appointed by Governor Schweiker to be Executive Director of the PA Commission for Women, and was a Receptionist for the office of The Margaret Thatcher Foundation in Washington, DC.

Norma was a past Director for the Division of Elementary Education for the Harrisburg School District, and an Elementary Principal at DA Marshall Elementary School. In addition to her many prestigious career positions, Norma chaired or was a member of numerous area organizations. Most notably she was a member of the HACC Foundation and a member of the Executive Committee of the Women's Fund of the Harrisburg Foundation for Enhancing Communities. Besides being a past AAH Board Chair, Norma was a past president of the Harrisburg Girls Club, Children's Play Room, National Women's Educational Caucus, American Assoc. of School Administrators, and the Harrisburg-Hershey Zonta Club.

Norma Gotwalt was a highly-regarded community servant, and a truly gracious lady. All who knew her will miss her greatly.

Tracing As Art

(Ages 15 through Adult, AAH Lower Level, 6 weeks)

Non-Artists, this class is for you! For eons, tracing has seemed like cheating, relegated to the back room, or just as a means to an end in the art world. This class will take tracing to the next level! We will create fabulous works of art in black-and-white and color, from tracing. No art experience required. Artists are welcome, too! This unique class will explore new ways of expression and anxiety-free ways to create works of art. Supplies: pad of tracing paper, graphite pencils, and eraser.

PAINTING & MIXED MEDIA

Acrylic Painting

(Ages 15 through Adult, AAH Third Floor, 9 weeks)

Beginning students will learn the basics of Acrylic Painting, including color theory, color mixing, composition and painting techniques. The class will work from still-lives initially, and later in the course, from photographs or landscape plein air sketches. More advanced students will be encouraged to work more independently, with at-easel critiques from the instructor.

Instructor: Brad Gebhart

$100.00 | Sept. 12–Nov. 7 | Tuesdays, 6–8pm

Landscape Painting

(Ages 15 through Adult, Outdoor Locations, 9 weeks)

Students will explore plein air painting, as well as nature-inspired studio work. They will work directly from nature to influence individual creativity. Students usually work in oil, acrylic, watercolor or pastels, and may work in any medium they choose. They MUST supply their own materials and a portable easel. The first class will be conducted at an outdoor location so it is essential for students to register IN ADVANCE so that the instructor is able to contact everyone with the place to meet! Students must bring their supplies and easels to the first class. Some travel is involved so it is necessary for participants to have transportation. PLEASE NOTE THAT THIS IS NOT A BEGINNING LEVEL PAINTING COURSE. Students with limited painting experience should consider taking our basic Oil or Acrylic courses.

Instructor: Paul Flury

$100.00 | Sept. 16–Nov. 11 | Saturdays, 10am–12:30pm

Oil Painting

(Ages 15 through Adult, AAH Third Floor, 9 weeks)

This class is intended for both beginning painters and for those with previous experience. The class will include demonstrations and instruction in technique, color mixing, and value for the beginners, while the more experienced students will be encouraged to work on their own projects, with occasional at-easel advice and critiques. The instructor will go over the supply list at the first session, so wait to purchase supplies until then.

Instructor: Jonathan Frazier

$100.00 | Sept. 11–Nov. 6 | Mondays, 7–9pm

Open Painting Studio (All Media)

(Ages 15 through Adult, AAH Lower Level, 9 weeks)

This open-studio-format session is intended for artists with some experience in watercolors, pastels, oils, or acrylics who do NOT require direct instruction. The artists MUST be AAH MEMBERS. Students may work from photos, sketches or still-lives. This open studio should provide artists an opportunity to not only create art, but also a social setting in which to share their art with other artists, in the spirit of the late Dave Lenker's classes. (There are table-top easels available in the lower-level studio, so artists may work on canvas paintings as well as flat-media works.)

Monitor: Dick Michaelian

$60.00 | Sept. 12–Nov. 7 | Tuesdays, 7–9pm

Watercolor

(Ages 15 through Adult, AAH Lower Level, 9 weeks)

Students will work from photos, still-lives, and sketches. Demonstrations will be included. Experienced students may use this class to expand their skills and may work independently. The class is appropriate for both the beginner and the more advanced student.
